Cultural Genocide in Thrace

"How can a person forget those fields, those meadows, over which the blood of our ancestors has flowed? To abandon them, along with our mosques, our tombs, our dervish lodges, our bridges and our fortresses, over whose squares Turkish raiders let their horses run, to the children of yesterday, and then, after 400 years, to be cast out of Rumelia (Thrace) and to move to Anatolia, this is something that cannot be borne. I would gladly give the remaining years of my life in order to take revenge on the GREEKS." - Enver Pasha, A Leader of the Young Turks

Six Hundred years of Slavery, Theft, Rape and Slaughter:

"A man's greatest pleasure is to defeat his enemies, to drive them before him, to take from them that which they possessed, to see those whom they cherished in tears, to ride their horses, and to hold their wives and daughters in his arms." - Genghis Khan, Turko-Mongol "Hero"

HOSTED BY: PAN-THRACIAN UNION OF AMERICA "ORPHEUS"

SUPPORTED BY : HELLENIC LEAGUE OF AMERICA "HLA"
